8. [redacted] called to say STAT
that in the hearings before the special Subcommittee of the Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, General Edwin Walker referred to CIA as being under the control of Walter Rostow since 1954. Sayle said that Colonel Gregan has officially denied Walker's allegation. (We plan to obtain a copy of the transcript of Walker's testimony before this special Subcommittee.)

STAT

DD/P, called to say Mr. Ed Siegel, in the Czech Branch of State Department, had asked for his assistance in preparing a draft letter for State to send to the House Judiciary Committee [redacted] STAT

STAT

[redacted] had included in the draft a statement to the effect that the State Department recommended approval of the bill. I advised [redacted] of STAT our contacts with the Bureau of the Budget on this bill and the fact that they would be recommending that the Agency oppose the bill. I suggested that he inform Siegel of this.

9. [REDACTED] attended a viewing by OCR/Graphic^{25X1} of the Soviet film [REDACTED]. The viewing was arranged at the request of Colonel Gunther G. Martel, of the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee staff. Also present were Charles A. Byrne of the Subcommittee staff and [REDACTED] of Graphics Registry. Martel and Byrne were interested in the film in connection with the Subcommittee's study of the Soviet education and information program as part of the hearing on military censorship.

10. [REDACTED] Handcarried a reply to Representative Lindley Beckworth (D., Tex.) from Legislative Counsel indicating the Agency was unable to comment on Mr. William A. Wieland, an employee of the Department of State, but was unable to see Representative Beckworth.

25X1 9. [redacted] Jay Sourwine, Counsel of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, called to say Senator Eastland had been trying to obtain "portable telephone scramblers". Eastland was turned down when he requested this equipment through the Senate on the basis that it would establish a precedent and other senators would also want this equipment. Sourwine asked if it was possible for the Agency to make this equipment available to the Subcommittee on a "loan" basis. I told him I would look into it and be in touch with him.
